

The Daily Courant.

Monday, November 21. 1715.

London, November 21. 1715.

THE following Association was on Saturday last presented by the Right Honourable the Lord Mayor to the Court of Lieutenancy then met at Guild-hall, and was there signed by all the Members of the Court present, as it had been some time before by his Lordship, and many Aldermen and other eminent Citizens: The said Association is now in the Custody of Mr. Smart, Clerk of the said Lieutenancy at Guild-hall, for other Citizens to subscribe the same.

The Association of the Lord Mayor, Aldermen, Common Council-Men, the Lieutenancy, Citizens and Inhabitants of London.

THE Wound which the City of London received in its best Branches of Commerce, is but one of the less Evils and Calamities brought upon us by the Perfidy of the late execrable Conspirators against the Kingdom's true Interest.

Their Treacherously giving up to the Enemy all the Glorious Successes of our Arms, which had cost this Nation so much Blood and Treasure, the raising and promoting false and inconsistent Distinctions of High and Low Church, of Landed and Monied Interest among us, and their encouraging and employing such as were most affected to the Pretender's Interest, has at last raised a most Unnatural Rebellion in the Bowels of our Country, prompted and carried on by some of the late Ministry, the Papists, Non-Jurors, and others their more wicked and Perjured Adherents, to destroy the best of Kings, the best of Churches, and the best Constitution in the World.

We for our Parts will be among the forwardest to tread down such an odious Rebellion, and will with that Zeal and Constancy that becomes Englishmen and Protestants, open our Purse, and hazard our Persons in the Defence of the great Guardian of our Religion, Laws and Liberties, our most Excellent Sovereign King George, whose Rightful and Lawful Title to the Imperial Crown of these Realms we will ever heartily and steadily Recognize and Maintain.

And if any shall be so Base and Villainous as to make an Attempt upon his sacred Person, or any of his Royal Family, we do all of us (with one Heart) Engage, Protest, and Vow, mutually to pursue and prosecute to Death and Speedy Destruction, the vile Criminals and all their Abettors, the Papists, Non-Jurors and others, disaffected to the present happy Establishment.

This we promise to perform to the utmost of our Power, as we shall answer the contrary to God and our Country.

The Association of the Protestants of the County of Dublin, subscribed by above Seven Hundred of the Nobility, Justice of the Peace, and Protestant Freeholders and Inhabitants of the said County at Kilmashnam, October 7. 1715.

WE, whose Names are hereunto subscribed, do sincerely Testify and Declare, that we do from our Hearts Detest and Abhor all Treason and Treasonable Practices whatsoever against his Majesty King George.

And we do also promise to Defend his said Majesty's undoubted Right and Title to the Crown of Great Britain and Ireland, and all the Dominions thereunto belonging, and the Succession, as by Law established, with our Lives and Fortunes.

And Whereas the Person pretended to be Prince of Wales, in the Lifetime of King James the Second, and since his Death, taking upon him the Style and Title of King of England and Ireland, by the Name of James the Third, and of Scotland by Name of James the Eighth, (encouraged by Bloody-minded Men and Rebels, who have no Regard to sacred Oaths and Solemn Declarations) does at this Time endeavour to disturb his Majesty's undoubted Title to the Crown of these Realms: We do hereby faithfully Promise and Engage to Almighty God, to his Majesty King George, and to each other, that we will to the utmost of our Power, assist his said Majesty, by taking up Arms for his Defence, which (with the Blessing of God on the Justice of our Cause) we will not lay down, till his deluded Rebellious Subjects are reduced to their Allegiance, and the Encouragers and Fomenters of them are brought to Justice.

And if any Attempt should be made upon his Majesty's Royal Person, or his Successors, (which God forbid) we will pursue not only those that make it, but all their Adherents, and all that we find in Arms against us, with the utmost Severity of a just Revenge to their Ruine and Destruction.

All this we do sincerely, heartily and willingly Promise and Engage to each other.

London, November 21.

'Tis said the 3000 Dutch Forces that failed Northward were ordered to Hull, in order to have marched into Lancashire if the Rebellion there had continued, but since General Wills has so happily put an End to that, Orders are sent down for the Transports to continue their Voyage with those Forces to Edinburgh.

On Friday Evening another Express arrived from Edinburgh with Letters of the 15th, giving an Account, that Portmore's and Evans's Dragoons drove the Rebels before them with great Slaughter for two Miles. The Earl of Forfar having received two Wounds in the Fight, was allowed Quarter; but the Rebels not being able to carry him off, barbarously gave him 17 Wounds more, in which Condition he was found in the field, and although he be yet alive his Recovery is much doubted: But the Earl of Ilay and Lieutenant Colonel Hawley 'tis hoped will recover of the Wounds they received in the Action. In the Night of the 13th and 14th, that Body of the Rebels which had made a Stand after their Left Wing was beaten, retired with great Precipitation to Auchtermarder, and, as some say, to Perth: Upon which the Duke of Argyll, who designed to have attacked them in the Morning, finding the Forage consumed, and that Provisions were not to be had about Damblain for his Majesty's Troops, returned that Evening to Stirling, bringing with him all the Artillery of the Rebels, with several Colours and some Baggage.

Letters from Preston of the 15th say, that the Lords Derwentwater and Widdrington, Mr. Forster, and all the rest of the Rebels who were made Prisoners there, are secured. General Carpenter with the three Regiments under his Command are ordered to the Quarter assigned them when they were first sent into the North.

The Earl of Godolphin is made Custos Rotulorum for the County of Oxford, as is the Lord Viscount Newport for the County of Stafford.

His Majesty has been pleased to promote Major-General Wills to the Rank of Lieutenant-General of his Majesty's Forces.
